

Richard Wright Architects

www.rwrightarchitects.com

Residence prototype Van Alstyne, Texas

The developer wanted a mid-priced prototype for a house to be built in a rural setting. The house was to provide an alternative to the brick "McMansion" style currently popular in the area. The prototype is flexible enough to accommodate several design options, and to respond to the topographic differences across the six-lot development.